WHEELER'S ANSWER

Replies to Newspaper Attacks on Army Administration.

CONDITIONS GROSSLY EXAGGERATED.

Santlago Campaign Accompanied by Unusual Difficulties-Why Camp at Montauk Was Chosen-No Unnecessary Neglect of Soldiers,

CAMP WIKOFF, Montauk Point, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Major General Joseph Wheeler gave out the following statement yesterday: "The following is a sample of the letters we are constantly receiving regarding the soldiers in the camp: "In regard to my stepson, we feel very uneasy about him on account of the newspaper reports of the privation and suffering inflicted on the private sold ers. Although he has never uttered a complaint since he has been in the army, we hear from other sources of the cruel and horrible treatment indicted on our soldiers under the pretense of humanity for our neighbors, and the whole country is in a state of terrible excitement. I should not be surprised if the feeling should lead to a revolution of some kind, for I assure you I hear on all sides the most violent and bitter denunciations of the war department and the administration. It is indeed a great pity that the glory of our triumph should be dimmed by such a shameful thing as the ill treatment and starvation of our own brave soldiers, while the Spanish prisoners have the best treatment that the country can af-ord' "It will be seen that this letter says that not a word of complaint has been received from this soldier, and so far as my investigation goes no complaint has been made by any of the brave soldiers who have added glory to our arms in the Cuban campaign. A great many auxious fathers, mothers, brothers or sisters arrive here from all parts of the United States to look after their relatives, who, they say, the papers tell them are suffering, and many of them have heard that their relatives are in a condition of starvation. Most of these people are little able to expend the money for such a journey, and they are surprised when they come here to find their relatives surrounded with everything to eat which can be procured by money, and if sick in the hospital they are gratified and surprised to find that they are given every possible care.

"In reply to a direct request that will give the exact facts as I see them I will state: Every officer and soldier who went to Cuba regarded that he was given a great and special privilege in being permitted to engage in that campaign. They knew they were to encounter yellow fever and other diseases, as well as the torrid heat of the country, and they were proud and glad to do so. They knew that it was impossible for them to have the advanage of wagon transportation usually accompanies armies, and yet officers and men were glad to go, to carry their blankets and their rations on their backs and to be subjected without any shelter to the sun and rains by day and the heavy dews by night. They certainly knew that the Spaniards had spent years in erecting defenses. and it was their pleasure to assault and their duty to capture the Spanish works. They were more than glad to incur the hardships and these dangers. They went there and did their duty, each man seeming to feel that American honor and prestige were to be measured by his conduct. The brave men who won the victories did not complain of the neglect of the government, but on the contrary they seemed grateful to the president and secretary of war for giving them the opportunity to incur these dangers and hardships. They realized that in the hurried organization of an expedition by a government which had no one with any experience in such matters it was impossible to have everything arranged to perfection, and they will testify that under the circumstances the conditions were much more perfect than any one would have reason to expect, and that the president and the secretary of war and others who planned and dispatched this expedition deserve high commendation. "After the surrender had been completed and arrangements perfected for transporting the Spanish army to Spain the president and secretary of war sent shipping to Santiago and transported our army to one of the most healthfu! localities in the United States. The point selected by the secretary of war was so situated that thorough protection was 1 given the people of the United States from the danger of yellow fever contagion. The soldiers upon their arrival at this place received every care and bounty which could be procured by money. The president and secretary of war directed that their health and comfort should be cared for without reference to expense, and in addition the people within a circuit of 100 miles vied with each other in shipping to them carloads and steamboat loads of luxucies of all kinds.

"I have just finished my daily in-spection of the hospitals. With rare exceptions the sick are cheerful and improving. I have nurses and doctors to care for them, and in all my tours I have not found a single putient who made the slightest complaint. It is true there has been suffering and great suffering. The climate of Cuba was very severe upon all our soldiers, but instead of complaining the hearts of those brave men are filled with gratitude to the people for the bounteous generosity which has been extended to

"There is no doubt that there have been individual cases of suffering and possibly neglect among the soldiers, not only in Cuba, but since their arrival at this place. Nearly 20,000 men were brought from a yellow fever district to the United States. It would have been criminal to have landed them and alinwed them to go promise unusly among the people. It has been stated by physicians that if that had been done yellow fever would have spread through many of our states.

"To avoid such a catastrophe a point which is more thoroughly isolated from the people than any other locality which could have been found was selected. By these wise means the country has been saved from a scourge of this fearful disease. Every one will realize that to land 18,000 men and put them on bare fields without any buildings whatever could not be done without some hardships. Over 5,000 very sick men have been received in the general hospital, and as many more sick have been cared for in the camps, and yet only about 60 deaths have occurred in these hospitals. "Tents had to be erected and hospitals constructed and preparations to supply those 18,000 men with wholesome water, food, medicines, physicians, nurses, cooks, hospital furniture, wagons, ambulances and the other needs essential to caring for 18000 men, fully half of whom are very sick or in a feeble physical condition. In addition to this, most of the bedding and much of the clothing was left in Santiago to prevent yellow fever infection. All of these deficiencies have had to be supplied. We had but one line of railroad to bring these supplies and sometimes there have been

PANDO'S BIG HAUL.

Starts For Madrid With 12.-000,000 Francs.

SOURCE OF THE MONEY A MYSTERY.

After Promulgating the Rumor That He Was Going to New York He Secretly Embarks With His Treasure.

HAVANA, Sept. 1, via Key West, Sept. 3.-Having successfully done everything in his power to convey the impression he was sailing to Spain via New York on the steamship Philadelphia yesterday morning. General Pando instead secretly started direct for his native land about ten hours later on the French steamer Notre Dame du Salut, n is said, with 12,000,000 francs.

The secret was so effectively kept that very few persons here have any knowledge of it, and all the Havana newspa-pers announced Pando's departure on the Philadelphia.

Before 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, when few persons were about. General Pando and the treasure were put aboard the Notre Dame du Salut, every effort being made to avoid notice. Pando was no sooner aboard the ship than he sent for Captain Pillard and intrusted 12,000,000 francs to his safekeeping, obtaining a receipt for it. Pando then locked himself in his stateroom and remained concealed until the suip left the harbor, about 7 o'clock in the evening.

There are many plausible reasons for General Pando's conduct, though exactly which one moved him it is impossible to ascertain. Much depends on where the treasure he carried away came from, but whatever its source, when the army is seven months in arrears and the civil list four months, and while both cry out for pay, it is obvious that a dangerous amount of discontent will be stirred up if the knowledge of the transportation of any such amount becomes public.

Although Pando had the reputation of having considerable private wealth, it is preposterous to suppose any such sum could be realized on his property here under existing circumstances. If the amount taken was paid by Blanca at Madrid's order, army and civil list conditions would make secrecy absolutely essential. If it was taken without Blanco's knowledge, no matter from what source, secrecy would be no less necessary for Pandon because of the treasury straits here. The funds may have been the combined resources euphemistically called the savings of Pando and friendly officers. The sum may have been, and most probably was, largely made up of subscriptions from Spaniards in South America, Central America and Mexico. which reached Pando in large amounts during his visit to Mexico.

General Blanco having ignored Pando's plan for the defense of Santiago, Pando probably insisted on delivering the funds direct in Madrid rather than through Blanco. Here again secrecy would be essential. It is worthy of note that on the Notre Dame du Saint, besides Pando, were Generals Figuereoa and Salcedo, sent home in disgrace by Blanco. Other passengers included many cadets from Spanish military schools and wounded: or ill soldiers provided with blankets and other comforts by the Spanish Red Cross. Apropos of Pando's departure, persons here have long been asking what has become of three other high officers who left Cuba when Pando did to procure vessels to run the blockade, each of these other three having carried away for that purpose 50,000 pesos, of which reports say nothing has been heard since.

Within the last few days the authorities here have reinstituted the system of patrol boats about the Maine wreck as maintained before the war, intending to show the commission their determination that American property shall be fully protected and, incidentally, that they do not regard the cause of the disaster as determined and intend to give no opportunity for the manufacture of evidence such as would be natural from their point of view.

NAVAL RESERVES PARADE First Battalion, Mustered Out Yesterday

Returns to New York. The reserves were paid and mustered out at the League Island navy yard, Philadelphia, in the morning, and came immediately to New York via the Pennsylvania railroad, arriving at Jerses City at 2:02 o'clock.

They were in command of Lieutenant W. Butler Duncan, Jr.

At Jersey City they were welcomed by delegations from the Chamber of Commerce, board of trade and board of transportation, as well as the Eighth regiment band and the drum corps of the First naval battalion.

Lieutenant Boyd Paymaster Candler and Ensigns Raynor and Monton of the naval reserves were also present.

In Jersey City the reserves were arm ed with carbines which had been fetched from the New Hampshire. Surgeon McCowor said that they had a clean sheet except for one man. Andrew Trainer who was suffering from gastritis and had been left in Philadelphia.

The line of march in New York was from the city hall to Waverley place and th nee to the Fifth avenue arch, where the men stopped for rest and water: then up Fifth avenue.

Deputy Sheriffs Have a Parade Which Causes Great Excitement.

PANA, Ills., Sept. 3 .- Fifty-four of the deputy sheriffs who have been on guard duty at the Springside coal mine made a demonstration yesterday afternoon by marching in a body through the principal streets of the city with loaded Springfield rifles and fixed bayonets to City Hall park, where they rested on their arms for half an hour. They were in charge of Mayor Penwell and Chief Deputy William Baldwin. Later they returned to the Springside mine. All along the line of march citizens hissed the deputies and applied all manner of epithets to them, but the deputies coolly continued their march.

Mayor Penwell said the deputies were brought to the city on orders of Governor Tanner, but the state secretary of the labor bureau, David Ross, the governor's representative, looking into the situation, denied the statement of the mayor. Mayor Penwell said it was feared the lives of the deputies and operators' familles were in danger.

The demonstration created great excitement.

The Attache Assured His Sovereign That He Had Had No Connection With Dreyfus-Latest Developments In France's Great Scandal.

PARIS, Sept. 3.-At last it may be affirmed with a reasonable degree of certainty that the prisoner of the Ile du Diable will soon be brought to France and retried for the crime for which he was illegally sentenced. A revision of Dreyfus' sentence has not yet been voted by the cabinet, but seven of the ministers are known to favor it. Two of them, MM. Cavaignac and Maruetouls minister of war and minister of commerce respectively, oppose it, or rather counsel delay, M. Cavaignac because he has not finished his investigations and is still confident that Dreyfus is guilty, and M. Maruejouls because business is bad and the country would suffer severely through the disturbance of trade which would certainly follow a great national scandal and excitement.. But the French people, even army officers, recognize that revision is inevitable, and public sentiment is wisely demanding that the crisis be brought to the quickest possible end.

Popular exasperation, now that the people see how easily they were fooled while the rest of the world outside of France was not deceived, grows greater instead of subsiding. It will not permit the present impossible situation to continue long. The decision of the government may be delayed for a few days to permit M. Cavaignac to finish his inquiries and in the hope that the public excitement will subside.

There will not be a special session of the chamber of deputies. Every effort will be made to avoid the summoning of parliament, even if the cabinet splits.

The true history of these latest developments is as follows: About a month ago the continued gibes of the French anti-Dreyfus press led Colonel Schwarzkoppen, formerly German military attache in Paris, to make a personal appeal to the German emperor to check the persistent attacks upon him. Colonel Schwarzkoppen again assured the emperor on his honor as a soldier that he never knew Dreyfus and never had any dealings with him while he was in Paris. The letter which it is alleged Colonel Panizzardi, the Italian military attache in Paris, had written to him mentioning Dreyfus by name was, Colonel Schwarzkoppen assured his sovereign, a forgery.

In response to this appeal Emperor William instructed Chancellor von Hoheniohe again to inform the French government of these facts and to insist that the continued repetition of the calumny in France must cease. Count ven Muenster, the German embassador to France, returned specially to Paris on Aug. 10 and delivered the above message to M. Deleasse, minister of foreign affairs. The latter informed President Faure, M. Brisson, the prine minister, and M. Cavaignac of the message.

It was this second warning from Germany that led M. Cavaignac once more to search all the documents relating to the Dreyfus case. He intrusted the inquiry to his friend and aid de camp. Captain Cugniet. The latter found convincing evidence of forgery in the document supposed to have been in the handwriting of Colonel Schwarzkoppen. He so reported to his chief on Aug. 12.

M. Cavaignac was appalled and enraged. He determined to fix the crime upon its author. Confidential communications passed with Berlin and Rome, with the result that Emperor William permitted Colonel Schwarzkoppen to make a statement as soldier to soldier to Count de Foucauld, the French military attache in Berlin, and the Italian government allowed Colonel Panizzardi to say to Colonel Girard-Pinsonniere. the French military attache in Rome on his honor as a soldier that he never wrote the letter ascribed to him naming Dreyfus as the person who had sold the plans of a certain fortress. Count de Foucauld and Colonel Girard-Pinsonniere were then summoned to Paris They were in the antercom of the war office when M. Cavaignac sent for Lieutenant Colonel Henry.

After a few questions at that dramatic interview M. Cavaignac declared that Colonel Henry had been imposed upon by a forgery. Colonel Henry declared that the document was genuine, whereupon the two attaches confronted him with the respective statements of Colonels Schwarzkoppen and Panizzardi Captain Cugniet pointed out the intrinsic evidence of the falsity of the document. Then the minister of war turned suddenly on Colonel Henry and, shaking the letter in his face, thundered:

This letter is a forgery, and you are the forger!" The guilty man did not attempt to deny the charge. The details of his confession have not been allowed to become public. It is well established, however, that one at least of his superior officers is implicated. In fact, it is impossible to deny that the French army administration is now so seriously compromised that public confidence has been destroyed and the gravest crisis threatens.

It is now universally believed that Colonel Henry committed suicide by order, and it cannot be denied that he was encouraged, if not urged, to make away with himself. As for the others who are guilty, enough is known already to indicate that in this, as in other scandals in France, it is necessary to "chercher la femme."

It is known that General Boisdeffre, lately chief of the general staff, who was most active in shielding Major Esterhazy and therefore in proving Dreyfus guilty, is the friend of a woman who throughout the case devoted herself to exculpating Major Esterhazy. It is impossible to give the details of this feature of the story or to dwell upon the sensational reports attributing atrocious crimes to high officers of the army whom the people lauded as gods and herees during the Zola trial last winter, but the scales are falling from the eyes of France at last. It remains to be seen what she will do when she realizes the full measure of the deceit humbug and humiliation of which she has been the victim.

THE QUEBEC CONFERENCE

Sessions Adjourmed Until Sept. 26-Enter-QUEBEC, Sept. 3.-The joint high commission of the United States, Canada, Newfoundland and Great Britain, after ten days' work, adjourned at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon to meet again in this city Sept. 20 at 11 a. m. All of the American commissioners excepting Mr. Kasson will return to their homes or to Washington. Mr. Kasson will remain in Quebec. The subcommittees and secretaries will continue their work here or at their homes during the recess. Lord Herschell, the representative from England, will go from here to Newfoundland. Sir James Winter, the Newfoundland répresentative, has returned home. The other Canadian commissioners left yesterday afternoon for their homes. Congressman Dingley left this afternoon for his home in Maine. General Foster will go to Washington. Last evening the commissioners and their wives and daughters dined with the Hon. R. D. Dobell, cabinet minister without portfolio, at his country residence, and during the morning the ladies of the party visited the Naval university.

What the commissioners accomplished up to this point or what they are likely to accomplish in the future can only be inferred from outward indications. Absolutely nothing has been revealed from within the meeting rooms of the commission. From the very first session until the adjournment the commissioners on both sides have repeatedly stated that the most friendly relations existed on both sides and that the representatives of both governments manifested a disposition, even a determina. tion, to reach a final adjustment of the questions of international dispute before them. In fact, everything that has transpired before the public eye in connection with the conference has confirmed these statements.

Stagnation of air currents for some un known cause is given by the Weather Bureau as the explanation for the intense heat. It is thought the air is heated to a height of 25,000 feet and acts as a curtain or blanket, preventing any radiation of the heat.

The Spanish government issued a decree, Friday, calling out 108,000 more | The British Troops' Advance on Omdurtroops, of whom it is announced that 30,000 are for the colonies,—presumably for the Philippines. This calling out of a new army does not look as if Spain expected peace, and the sending of 30,-000 troops to the Philippines would seem to indicate a purpose to transfer the seat of hostilities to the part of the world most difficult for us to reach.

In the Delaware county Republican convention the machine had things all its own way and it rode rough shod over all opposition. The canvass preliminary to the choice of delegates was a hot one and some very plain truths were told by Republicans concerning the methods resorted to by the party managers to carry out their plans and crush all opposition. The corrupt use of money to carry primaries and debauch delegates was the charge most frequently made, but it seems to have fallen on deaf ears and to have had no other effect than to increase the number of those anxious to be corrupted and debauched.

If a Congressional election was not to driven the Dervish cavalry and small be held, this fall, an investigation of the War Department's mismanagement of Jebelroyan we marched to Wadelobeid, everything connected with the conduct of the war would certainly be ordered at once. The Administration fears, and with good reason, the effect of the revcamel corps with the horse battery elations that would be made, but the truth is coming out; every day brings some fresh disclosure, and fever stricken soldiers are going home to every community whose hollow eyes, gaunt faces and wasted frames tell of the sufferings and bardships they have had to undergo because of official neglect and incompetence and, investigation or no investigation, public opinion has fixed the responsibility where it surely belongs and will certainty seek to inflict punishment by striking at the candidates of the parcy of the administration which permits such things to be and calls no one to account.

Correspondence Andre and Minerely. After the ecorching heat of Friday, many of the male population of our village sought relief in the cooling waters of the pond, Several swimming parties were in at different times during the afternoon and early evening. One of them was composed of Wm. Gaedeke, a cigar maker, his son, a man in his employ and another lad from the village. Mr. Gaedeke, although a swimmer, had not been in the water for several years, and when none of his three companions saw him sank without making a sound. Several men were fishing at the dam below and heard nothing, but he was nowhere to be seen or found, while his clothes still laid on the shore.

The calls of his son and workman soon awoke the village to the knowledge that one of their hard working, industrious men lay dead somewhere at the bottom of the pond.

A grappling iron was soon procured, and while men were busy with that from the bank, others found timber and made a raft. By tying a garden fork to an eighteen foot pole the men on the raft was able to work at the bottom. One manly fellow plunged boldly in and dived several times, but it was a hard task locating the body as no one saw it go dewn. Too much canuot be said in praise of the swimmer, however, as he remained faithfully in the water from 9:15 to 10:30, when he found the body not ten feet from shore, near the post office. Dr. Wilson was called and although all known means of restoration were resorted to, life was extinct.

The body was taken to Undertaker Smith's to await the action of the LIGHTNING'S QUEER PRANKS.

A Storm Cloud, Charged With Electricity, from Which no Lightning Reached

Those who watched the storm cloud which drifted along the northern horizon. Friday evening, saw lightning playing all sorts of queer pranks. Bolt after bolt leaped horizontally from one"thunder head" to another, and at frequent intervals bolts would leap up from the cloud and spend their force in the air. Those who watched this cloud for an hour, as long as the electrical display continued, saw no signs of any lightning plunging earthward. The upper edge of the cloud was the only part of it that seemed to be charged with electricity, and all the lightning flashes appeared

At the same time there was another storm cloud in the west that was charged with electricity that was seeking the earth, and its vivid flashes lighted up the heavens at frequent intervals.

The Republican forces have been in conference on street corners and meeting places, to-day, endeavoring to find out just the strength of each other. Breaking the News.

O YOU think he'll take it very badly, Nora?" Nora Helmsley sbrugged her shoul-

"My dear Betty, you ought to know more about Mr. Markham's powers of endurance than I." "But what do you think he'll do?

What do you suppose—" "Why waste our time in supposition? He'll be here most likely this afternoon, and you will be able to judge for Betty Oakhurst sprang to her feet. "Ted is coming here this afternoon? Why on earth didn't you tell me before?" And she fidgeted nervously with her hat before the glass as she spoke.

"But you knew. Betty, where are you going?"

"Anywhere out of this," cried the girl, laughing nervously as she stooped to kiss her friend.

Nora, however, caught her arm. "Nonsense, Betty! You'd much better tell him straight out now and get it over. It will be ever so much more awkward for you if the news reaches him from outside"

"I don't see that at all," returned Betty, quietly, as she drew away from her companion. "I am sure that if—if

She paused tentatively. "You don't mean to say that you expect me to tell Ted Markbam that you've jilted him?" "I certainly don't expect you to put it in that way," replied Miss Oakhurst, with a little laugh; "but I am quite certain that you would explain it to the poor fellow much better than anyone else."

"Explain!" exclaimed Nora, impatiently. "I don't know that there's anything to explain, except that you've put yourself and me in a most ridiculous position."

"I wish I'd never had anything to do with it. I never felt so uncomfortable in my life as I have done since you dragged me into this precious scheme of yours."

"Poor old Nora!" murmured Betty, sympathetically, while she cast furtive glances at the clock.

"You came here and shed any number of tears; declared that you adored Ted Markham; that your father wouldn't hear of an engagement, but that if you only had a little time before you, you were sure everything would come right."

"So it has," remarked Betty, sotto voce. "It's only a question of point of

Nora flashed an indignant look at

"I think you might be serious now, and at least pretend that you're ashemed of yourself. You begged me to help you to get my aunt to ask him here, to act as screen in fact, so that your people might imagine it was all over and that you had both changed your minds, and now-now-"

The sound of a bell broke in upon Miss Helmsley's eloquence, and Betty caught up her gloves.

"I'm awfully sorry, Nora. Abuse me as much as you like. Good-by!" And before Nora could stop her she had darted through the door and was on her way downstairs. She let her go. After all, it was never any use to argue with Betty; she was one of those delightfully irresponsible creatures who always manage to shift the blame of their shortcomings on to other people's shoulders, and whom no one-no man, at any rate-ever dreams of judging by ordinary standards. Nora wondered, as she stood there idly looking into the street, how she could ever have been foolish enough to take Betty's love troubles seriously. Meantime that same folly of hers was going to bear some very unpalatable fruit. In less than ten minutes young Markham would be there. He had arranged to call for Miss Helmsley and her aunt, Lady Hewitt, to escort them to an afternoon concert. The elder lady had declared at luncheon that the weather was far too depressing for it not to be madness to risk the probability of a further fall in one's moral barometer by a couple of hours of orchestral music, and that Nora must give him some tea and her excuses. Nora was conscious that this was a neat pretext for giving the young man the chance of a tete-a-tete with herself. Lady Hewitt was too indolent. naturally, not to be heartily weary of her dutles as chaperon to her niece. To be a first of the control of t red Markham, with his post in the foreign office and his meager personal fortune, Lady Hewitt would open her arms to him gladly if he would but relieve her of her operous duties of watchdog, and would declare that

Nora had money enough for them both. Nora sighed as she stood at the window. It was a 'opsy-turvy world, and the wrong people were always being thrown together. If only-

"Am I disturbing you? I was told to come in here.' Nora started, and the color rushed to her face. "Oh. I hadn't beard you come in!

Do sit down. Aunt isn't well. I am so sorry you should have had the trouble of calling for nothing, but she hoped to be able to go until the last moment. Won't you let me give you some tea?" She spoke with nervous hurry, scarcely pausing for an answer.

Ted Markham took the chair she offered him, and listened in silence while she rattled on. Suddenly she stopped, conscious of his fixed glance. "Is anything the matter?" sheasked, in a slightly alarmed voice. It was surely not possible that he could already have learned of Betty's treach-

"Yes. We can't go on like this, Miss Helmsley."
"No:" Nora fest the color go out of

"Miss Oakharst is going to be married" Nora gasped, but did not speak. "The is engaged to Lord Barthorpe. I met Lady Oakhurst just now, and she was overflowing with loving kindness to the world in gen-

"Betty has behaved abominably!" put in Nora, indigrantly.

Ted Markham smiled. "I think, on the contrary, that she has shown remarkably good sense. I am going to leave London: I really came this afternoon to say good-by."

Nora bit her lips. "I am very sorry." she began, hesttatingly. "I am afraid I was rather to blame, but I thought Betty really cared, and-"

She left the sentence unfinished. Ted Markham's demeanor puzzled her: he was quite white, and there was a look in his eyes which troubled her. What was there in her fluffy-haired, blue-eyed little friend to more a man so? That her companion had taken some great resolution, and that a singularly difficult one, it was easy enough to perceive. "Are you going to be away long?" she asked, awkwardly. "I mean, are you going far?"

"I think of going to have a look at the antipodes. My father has some interest, and I hope to get sent off to Melbourne." "But haven't you made up your mind rather hurriedly?" she objected, midly. "Hurriedly? Why, I put things in train weeks ago!" "Weeks ago!" she exclaimed. "But Betty's engagement is quite fresh. Did you suspect-"

"Don't you," was the remark; "he'll just be fooling you in England. He's a caution of a man! A wanting to put Ireland upside down."

Miss Hamm is described by her friends as a French Canadian by birth, having first seen the light in Montreal in April of 1871, but she is an American by adoption. She is a granddaughter of the late Bishop Spencer, of Canada, a well-known writer and divine, and probably inherits most of her literary talents from him. She is also a relative of Herbert Spencer.

She has been a great traveler and has always been eager to accept assignments that carried her to distant places.

Miss Hamm is a member of several clubs in this country and Europe. Her husband, William Fales, a traveler and literary man, was formerly vice consul at Amoy, China, under Dr. Bedloe, who was appointed by Cleveland, and later Mr. Fales succeeded him and became consul.
